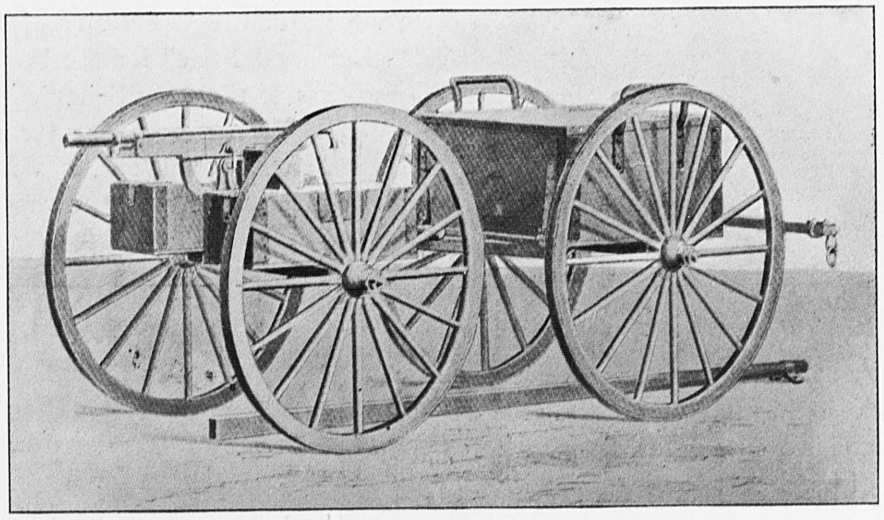
BATTERY A'S NEW EQUIPMENT.

COLONEL SHELDON POTTER, Chief of Artillery, is making strenuous efforts to properly equip the artillery arm of the State, thereby placing it on a high plane of efficiency.

Battery "A" is now equipped with eight Automatic Colt guns, as shown in above illustration. This is what might be termed a flying Battery, there being but five men required to the section, the other men forming a platoon similar to the cavalry formation.

Colonel Potter proposes to make Battery "B" field artillery, giving them the six 3—2 inch breech loaders, four of which they already possess, and two now in posession of Battery "C" will be transferred to Pittsburgh. It is then proposed to equip Battery "C" with eight modern Gatlings, making it one of the most formidable artillery organizations in the United States.

The Colt gun is quite an innovation in our service, and in order that our readers may fully understand its worth, we give this description: This arm consists of one barrel attached to a breech casing, in which the mechanism for charging, firing and ejecting is contained.



One of Battery "A's" New Colt Automatic Guns Mounted on Field Carriage and Limber.

The cartridges are automatically fed to the gun by means of belts which are coiled in boxes readily attached to the breech casing, and these boxes moving with the latter, the supply of cartridges is not disturbed by the vertical or horizontal moving of the gun. The boxes contain one hundred, two hundred and fifty or five hundred cartridges each, and are so constructed that they can be quickly attached or removed.

The automatic action of the gun is effected by means of the pressure of the powder gases in the barrel, after the projectile has received its maximum velocity without decreasing its range of penetration. This object is attained by a small radical vent in the barrel somewhat in rear of the muzzle, opening downward from the bore. This vent is closed by a piston which fits in the gas cylinder surrounding the outer edge of the vent. The piston is pivoted to the gas lever so that it adjusts itself to the gas cylinder while the lever swings in a vertical plane.

In operation, the feed belt is entered and the lever is thrown down and rearward (once by hand) as far as it will go; this opens the breech and feeds the first cartridge from the belt to the carrier; the lever is then released, and the spring causes it to swing forward, close the vent and transfer the cartridge from the carrier to the barrel, also cocking the hammer and closing and locking the breech.

On pulling the trigger the shot is fired, and after the bullet has passed the vent and before its exit from the muzzle, the powder gases expand throwing the vent upon the piston and gas lever, which in turn act on the breech mechanism, opening the breech, ejecting the shell and feeding to the carrier another cartridge. The gas lever returning, forces home the cartridge in the barrel, closing and locking the breech. If, instead of releasing the trigger it is held back, the same operation will be repeated so long as cartridges are supplied, producing a continuous fire at the rate of four hundred shots or more per minute.

As the automatic action of this gun is due to the direct effect upon the lever by the pressure of the gases through the vent, in contradistinction to that class of automatic arms in which the recoil of the barrel is depended on for actuation, the delicacy of the parts necessary in the latter class is avoided in this gun; therefore the barrel and the storage springs are of greater strength, and yet effective with even small charges.

A safety lock is provided which securely locks the hammer and prevents same from striking the firing pin. It is to be used only when a loaded cartridge is left in the chamber. The hammer of this gun is also used as a piston for an open air pump, which forces a strong jet of air into the chamber and through the barrel, removing all residue or unburnt powder, after the empty shell is extracted. The want of such a device has been shown by the experience of other guns, and is still greater when using smokeless powder.

The main spring, firing pin and extractor can be replaced as easily and as quickly as in the ordinary bolt gun, all these parts being removable from the rear of the arm without displacing a single screw.

JUDGE ROBERT RALSTON,
Formerly Colonel of the 3d Infantry

JUDGE ROBERT RALSTON

Judge Robert Ralston, former commander of the Third Regiment Infantry, N. G. P., one of the newly appointed Judges of the Court of Common Pleas No. 5, needs no introduction to the Philadelphia public, and his elevation to the Bench will give general satisfaction to the Bar and to laymen in all walks of life.

Correct in his theory of the law, as well as in the practice of it, he has stamped with success all that he has undertaken. Besides his active interest in public affairs, and his extensive law practice, he has written and edited a number of important legal publications. He has given many notable demonstrations of his high legal attainments, and enjoys the reputation of being one of the best equipped lawyers of this city, having during his career as a practitioner been identified with some of the largest cases in the country.

Colonel Ralston was born March 11, 1863. His father was Francis W. Ralston, the son of Robert Ralston, who, in turn, was the son of another Robert Ralston. His mother was Elizabeth C. Meredith, a daughter of William M. Meredith, Esq., a famous lawyer of this city, who among various positions of great public responsibility was Secretary of the Treasury under President Taylor in 1849, and President of the Pennsylvania State Constitutional Convention in 1873.

After a preliminary schooling, Robert Ralston was placed in the Episcopal Academy. At the termination of his academic course he entered the Pennsylvania Railroad Company's office. This was in July, 1878, and he remained in that position for one year, when he entered the Reading Iron Works. He worked in the office and store of this company for two years, when he decided to adopt the profession of law, and in 1882 began the necessary preparatory study. For one year he read law, at the same time earning a salary as a stenographer. In 1883 he went to the University of Pennsylvania Law School, from which he graduated in 1885. The same year, in June, he was admitted to the Philadelphia Bar, and has ever since been an active and successful practitioner. A large number of important cases in all branches of jurisprudence have been handled by him, and his knowledge of the law is thorough and complete.

In recognition of his legal ability and peculiar fitness, Colonel Ralston was appointed assistant United States Attorney in April, 1892. He was the incumbent of that office until July, 1896, and through his entire term of more than four years he was a most efficient and capable legal representative of the government, being frequently praised for his able management of the affiairs of his office.

In the meantime Colonel Ralston's activity along other lines led him to adopt a military career. His name is as familiar and highly respected in military circles as in the legal field. In June, 1893, he was elected first lieutenant of Company F, Third Regiment, National Guard of Pennsylvania. Early in 1895, when Colonel Edward Morrell resigned from the Third Regiment, Robert Ralston was elected Colonel as his successor.

On the 28th of April, 1898, the Third Regiment was ordered to Mt. Gretna, Pa., and on May 5, Governor Hastings visited the camp and called on officers and men to volunteer for service in the Spanish War. Colonel Ralston's regiment, the Third, was the first regiment in Pennsylvania to volunteer, and was mustered into service as the Third Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, on the 11th of May, being the third regiment mustered in in Pennsylvania.

As a sample of Col. Ralston's scholarly attainments, it is interesting to note that in 1884 he took the faculty prize for the best written example of all branches, which competition was open to all students of the University of Pennsylvania. In 1885 he won the "Sharswood Prize" for the best essay by a member of the graduating class of the Law School.

Colonel Ralston is active in public affairs, as secretary of the Gynecean Hospital, and is a man of thoroughly progressive ideas and active temperament, a reputation he deservedly enjoys.

LIEUTENANT SAMUEL A. BOYLE, JR.,
Commissary of the 3d Infantry.

BASKET BALL IN THE GUARD

BASKET BALL in the Guard is getting to be quite a favorite sport. Perhaps one of the best known teams in the service is that from the Third Regiment. It was organized in the latter part of 1897. The first game played was with the team from the Pennsylvania Naval Battalion, the score being 6 to 0 in favor of the Third Regiment team. At that time seven men were played in place of five; the team consisting of Koenig and Cranston (forwards), Boppell and Gefrorer (side centres), Gynzell (centre), and Bluett and O'Connell (guards).

During the season of '97 and '98 they won eleven games and lost five; the season of '98 and '99 they won twelve games and lost five; the season of '99 and '00 they won twenty-two games and lost twelve, and the season of '01 to date they have won twenty and lost six.

In all the games played with military teams they sustained but one loss, therefore holding the undisputed championship of the National Guard of Pennsylvania.

Chief Musician, Joseph Thickpenny, is the Manager and has only been connected with the Athletic Association since October last. Under his management the condition of the Association has much improved, particularly so with the financial end of it. Private Frank Sykes of Company "G" is the Captain, who has the enviable score of 172 points to his credit in three seasons' work. Sergeant Major, Frank Boppell (forward), is indefatigable in his part of the work. He has a score of 113 points to his credit and is one of the original members of the team. Sergeant Howard T. Bluett (guard), is from Company "C." He is considered an all around man and formerly played forward. The last two seasons, however, he has played guard and centre, having scored 68 points. Corporal John L. Hartranft (guard), is from Company "I" and is one of the progressive members of the team. He is considered to be a hard man to beat, and while only having about one season's training in basket ball, he has scored 54 points to date. Private Wm. Hunter (forward), is a member of Company "G," and his connection dates back to the season of '98. His Company is known to be one of the athletic organizations in the Guard. He is invincible in his particular position and has the great score of 284 points to his credit, which is the greatest individual record known in the Guard. Private Henry Haberkern (forward), is a new man, and owing to illness has been unable to appear in many of the games. He is a promising man, however, and good results are anticipated before the close of the season. Musician William Hughes (guard), Company "E," is one of the veterans of the team and is regarded as a reliable player, his score to date being 58 points.

We believe that more encouragement should be given to athletics in the Guard as it greatly aids the physical development of the soldier, and has a tendency to strengthen the general interest in the service.

The Journal would suggest that a State Athletic Association be organized at the coming encampment, each team being represented by one or two of its members.

Chief Musician Joseph Thickpenny, care of Armory, S. Broad St., Phila., Pa., solicits correspondence from the different regiments throughout the State.

Dr. Dussaud, of the Psychological Institute of Paris, gave a lecture on February 16 at the Hospital des Sociétés Savantes on the education of the blind and deaf. A large audience witnessed interesting experiments founded on his method for supplementing the senses of these two classes of unfortunates.

The cinematograph for the blind is a machine which passes under the fingers of the blind, a series of reliefs representing the same object in different positions—the branch of a tree, a bird, or any other object. The blind person has the illusion of moving scenes just as photographs passing over a luminous screen lend the illusion to those with sight.

Dr. Dussaud has also arranged an electric vibration for the use of the deaf who are incurable. This gives them the notion of musical rhythm. For those not entirely deaf, he has invented a "gradual amplifier of sounds," which supplements the organs of hearing and in some instances improves them.

Dr. Dussaud expressed the hope that these two inventions would materially aid in the education of the deaf and blind.

The doctor gave a number of statistics already furnished by him to the Academy of Medicine and the Society of Biology, showing that his method had been applied during the last four years to more than three hundred patients affected either with blindness or deafness, and that in most cases the results obtained had been extremely satisfactory.

NOTE.

It has been the custom in most Companies for many years to appoint a camp mess committee, with the Captain usually as ex-officio Chairman, the object being to take some extra provisions in addition to what the State furnishes. These are paid for by the men who voluntarily agree to give $1.00 out of their camp pay. Thus they secure a mess which not only provides them the substantials, but little luxuries which make the soldier feel good during his tour of duty. The committee's work can be considerably lessened this year by placing their orders with E. A. Bowker & Co., 13th and Market streets, Philadelphia. This firm will take special pains in filling orders for the encampment. Their resources are so large that they are enabled to have a variety that pleases the boys. The several Captains who purchased from this firm last year speak in the highest terms of the treatment they received, not only the excellent qualities furnished, but the reasonable prices charged.

FOR SALE, owing to removal from the State: Second Lieutenant's uniform, almost new; First Brigade cap device; officer's overcoat, sword and belt. Measurements: blouse, 35 inch chest; trousers, 31 waist, 31 in-seam, cap 6⅞. Address, "Our State Army and Navy" Journal, Betz Building, Philadelphia, Pa.

BATTERY A'S NEW EQUIPMENT,

The barrel of the gun is of such strength that it will withstand the heaviest charges of nitro-powder, and its accuracy is not disturbed by the vibration incident to rapid firing. It does not heat as rapidly as the light barrels of other systems; therefore, the troublesome water-jacket for cooling is not required.

The Colt Automatic Gun is the result of exhaustive experiments and the perfecting of a method whereby powder gases are utilized to work automatically the firing, ejecting and reloading mechanism.

The gun can be constructed for the use of any kind of rifle ammunition; is particularly adapted to the needs of our National Guard and can be fitted to the various mounts suitable for the service.

LIEUT. SAMUEL A. BOYLE, JR.

Lieutenant Samuel A. Boyle, Jr., was born twenty-four years ago in the State of Virginia and is the grandson of the late General Robert E. Lee.

He entered the University of Pennsylvania in 1894. He was a member of the football team of '94, '95, '96 and in '97 was made Captain of the same. He was also a member of the University crew of '97.

At the breaking out of the Spanish-American War, he resigned from the University to enter the service and enlisted in Battery "A," Pennsylvania Volunteer Artillery. On the Battery's return from Porto Rico, he re-enlisted in the State organization and was appointed Sergeant. May of 1900 he was tendered the position of Commissary with the rank of First Lieutenant of the Third Regiment, by Colonel Ralston, which position he has filled with great credit.

He is associated with Judge Ralston in the practice of law. He was graduated from both departments of the University, academic and law, having finished his University course in 1898.

NINTH REGIMENT NOTES.

Captain Chas. S. Colony, Co. C., Ninth Regt, Infantry, N. G. P., held an election at Pittston, Pa., on Monday evening, March 11, 1901, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of First Lieutenant Robert C. Holmes, Co. C. Second Lieutenant Wm. A. Francis was advanced to First Lieutenant, and Sergeant E. L. Van Valkenberg was elected Second Lieutenant. Both elections were unanimous. Lieutenant Holmes has served seven years in Co. C, Ninth, and Lieutenant Van Valkenberg nearly six years.

A number of important changes have taken place in Co. G, Ninth Infantry, located at Hazleton. Captain Andrew Lee, who organized the Company, and who has been most enthusiastic in his efforts to maintain a high standard of efficiency, has been compelled to resign on account of his business taking him out of the State. At the recent election held to fill his place First Lieutenant Calvin Pardee, Jr., was unanimously elected Captain, Second Lieutenant W. Isaac Ravert was elected First Lieutenant, also unanimously, and after a close and exciting contest between Sergt. Chas. Trevaskis and Corporal Carl Conner the latter was elected Second Lieutenant.

Captain Pardee and Lieutenant Ravert have already demonstrated their ability as capable and efficient officers and Lieutenant Conner has proven himself a first rate non-commissioned officer and should make a good record in his new position.

Second Lieutenant Wm. Norton, Co. A, Ninth Regiment Infantry, N. G. P., has rejoined his company after a most severe siege of appendicitis, during which he underwent four operations, his life being despaired of. He is on the road to recovery. The company gave him an enthusiastic welcome upon his first appearance on the drill floor.

The vacancy caused by the resignation of Captain E. R. Williams, Co. E, Ninth Infantry, has been filled by the election of Togarmat Morgan from civil life. While Captain Morgan has not been identified with the Guard for some years he is by no means without military experience, having served five years with the old Scranton City Guard when Captain (now Colonel) Watres commanded it. Captain Morgan's first duty was in connection with the Washington trip and he handled his Company like a veteran.

On March 7th he was appointed First Brigade Quartermaster with the rank of Major. September 12, 1892, he resigned his position, but his military ardor would not permit him to stay out of the Guard long, and he was prevailed upon to accept the position of aide-de-camp on the First Brigade staff, October 4th of the same year. On January 7, 1894, he was promoted to aide-de-camp on the staff of the Commander-in-Chief. THE merging of the Dewey cadets into our State Navy is very commendable. They will not only prove a valuable acquisition to our Reserves, but at once become official sailors of the Commonwealth, and their services recorded accordingly.

THE caustic article appearing in several newspapers of March 7th, commenting upon the review of our Division by General Miller, was ridiculous in the extreme, as the writer knows from personal experience that there was no delay whatever in the line of march.

DURING the inauguration quite a number of West Point cadets were seen to affiliate with the Guardsmen of Pennsylvania and closely watch the several commands located in Convention Hall and the Patent Office. Some of these were overheard to remark that they would be glad to have the honor of commanding a Pennsylvania Regiment.

THE dress parade and review of Colonel O'Neill's Fourth Infantry while at Washington, D. C., March 3d, in front of the Shoreham Hotel, was a splendid exhibition of soldierly bearing and fine marching, the alignments and distances being particularly well preserved.

The new musical organization of the 4th was also well received, especially when "Dixie" was rendered.

MAJOR WILLIAM S. MILLAR, the newly appointed Assistant Adjutant General on General Gobin's staff, is an officer of vast experience and the General's selection is a most excellent one although we feel the distance between Scranton and Lebanon will not prove expeditious for the regular routine work, as Major Gherst resigned, owing to his removal to Reading, believing that he could not discharge the duties properly of the office of Assistant Adjutant General away from headquarters.

THE indoor athletic meet of Company "D" First Regiment, on Saturday evening, March 16th, proved a very successful event. The condition of the track might have been improved by having raised corners, thus lessening the danger and possibly preventing the accident to Mr. Davis, Captain of the Lawrenceville School.

Athletic meets of this kind are always beneficial to the organization, but we feel that the object is lost when not confined strictly to the Guard.

LIEUTENANT J. M. SHINDEL, who is an aspirant for a Second Lieutenancy in the regular establishment, is being strongly endorsed by Senator Penrose and Mr. Harrison, provost of the University of Pennsylvania.

Lieutenant Shindel is the First Lieutenant of Company "H" of the Fourth Infantry and is a very able officer. In professional life he is a Counsellor-at-Law and District Attorney of Lebanon County.

THE archives of the War Department at Washington show a complete record of every officer who entered the volunteer service during the war with Spain, giving the capabilities of the officer and showing the popular feeling of the men towards the same. The personnel and the efficiency of each regimental command is also minutely described, and the supposition is that three secret service men or spies were ordered to enlist in each volunteer regiment during this service, whose duties it was to make special reports, at least once a week, on the workings of the command.

THE spring inspections have fairly advanced, and while considerable improvement is shown, especially in Wagner's work, the general impression of the inspectors is that too little attention is paid the recruit who should be thoroughly instructed in the duties of the school of the soldier, particularly guard duty. It frequently happens that sentinels will know their Special and General Orders, but have little or no conception of the proper time for rendering salutes and challenging.

Here is a pointer for such Captains whose inspections are yet to take place.

SO much has been said about the conduct of our soldiers while at Washington that it seems almost needless to further comment, but it was a matter of comparative easiness to impute to them an undue share of the misdoing incident to that occasion. It is the habit of the country to indulge in a great lark when a President is sworn in, and there is always subsequent "peanut-stand" and "hot sausage" venders remonstrance.

As a matter of fact, the Pennsylvania troops compare favorably with the citizen soldiery of other States, whether on the inaugural parade or at camp, in skylarking or in a fight. When the citizens of the District of Columbia are in any real trouble, they are always glad to gather themselves under the protective wing of our regiments.

If, in the future, the inaugural committees fail to invite the Keystone Battalions, who cares? Our men are never very anxious to take part in these ceremonies, especially as it is a foregone conclusion that a "roasting is in store for them."

THE Adjutant General's report, just issued for the years '98 and '99, is a masterpiece. Its composition shows the work of an expert.

COLONEL RUTLEDGE and his Eighteenth Regiment will soon be compelled to leave their present Armory, the City of Pittsburgh having decided to erect the new morgue upon the site this spring.

It is a crying shame that such a fine body of men, who are serving the public in upholding law and order without compensation, should be thrown out in such a merciless manner. It seems strange with all the industries and the immense wealth represented in the Smoky City, that there is not sufficient public spirit displayed to give these boys a proper home.

It is stated that a fund of $160,000 has been subscribed and this is in the hands of a so-called armory committee. If these gentlemen are indifferent to the welfare of the Guard or have not the executive ability to bring this matter to a successful issue, they should step out and hand the work over to a more progressive element.

Personal Mention

Colonel William F. Richardson has invented a brace of exceptional durability, being attached to concealed buttons on the trousers.

Mr. Walter Alcock, Second Troop Philadelphia City Cavalry, is mentioned as a possible candidate for Second Lieutenant.

Major General Charles Miller is expected to visit Philadelphia, April 17th, and has expressed a desire to meet all officers of the First Brigade. General Schall has very kindly tendered the use of his headquartres for this purpose.

Lieutenant Colonel Wm. F. Barber, Twelfth Infantry, was a guest of several officers of the Third Regiment at one of their recent inspections, the Colonel expressing himself much pleased with his visit.

Company "I" of the Thirteenth (Captain Horn), had "their own troubles" during the inaugural trip. They were fully prepared to feed their men on the train, but change of cars at Baltimore deprived them of their entire mess outfit.

We are informed that Lieutenant Colonel Albert H. Hartung, Second Infantry, contemplates leaving the service owing to business pressure and physical disability. If this is the case, the Regiment will lose a field officer hard to replace.

Colonel Albert J. Logan of the Seventeenth Infantry (assigned to duty with Commander-in-Chief), has been visiting the East and was the guest of Surgeon General Shoemaker, March 22d. It is rumored that Colonel Logan will become an active aide-de-camp on the Governor's staff.

Major Charles F. Lumb, Sixth Infantry, who has been on a leave of absence for three months, has just returned from abroad, completing several important business arrangements. Colonel Coryell, as well as the officers and men of the Third Battalion, are greatly pleased at the return of their esteemed Major.

Lieutenant Ross D'Armond, who is quite ill in New Mexico, has resigned his position in the Troop and will no doubt be succeeded by First Sergeant Shermerhorn.

Captain James B. McCalley, Eighth Infantry, and attached to the Adjutant General's office, is in a very precarious condition with typhoid fever. His son, James, Jr., is at the City Hospital afflicted with smallpox and Mrs. McCalley is down with nervous prostration.

Captain McCalley is a very popular and efficient officer, and should his illness terminate fatally, the service will sustain a severe loss.

Lieutenant Colonel Frank W. Stillwell of the Thirteenth Infantry, and Major John H. Rust of the Eighteenth Infantry, are both claimants to having received the highest general average of last summer's inspection. Colonel Stillwell has instigated an official investigation and the trouble seems to be in the compilation of the inspector's report.

This error is likely to raise considerable "kick," as the Battalion from the Smoky City claim that they are justly entitled to first honors.

NOTES.

It is stated that the Scranton City Guard, in its endeavor to be hospitable on the inaugural trip, invited several newspaper men to accompany the organization, and it is a curious fact that the return compliment was the publication of the sensational dispatches from Washington.

The anniversary parade of the Infantry Corps State Fencibles will take place on May 24th next when the organization will appear in their famous dress uniform and shako hat, under command of Major Thurber T. Brazer.

Philadelphia in particular will be pleased to see this time-honored organization on the street again.

The magnificent new armory of the Thirteenth Regiment will be finished in a few weeks' time and opened with suitable ceremonies the first week in May. Colonel Watres and his officers as well as the armory committee, deserve great credit for their untiring efforts in properly housing the splendid Thirteenth Infantry. The Armory will surpass anything in the State of Pennsylvania and will cost when completed nearly $300,000. It will no doubt be a great relief to the Company commanders when they get settled in their new home.

Some expression has been made regarding the manner of paying for this magnificent structure, many of the officers believing that the State should build the Armories or dispense with the Guard.

The Second Infantry officers who were present at the drill and ceremonies of the Thirteenth Regiment, Heavy Artillery, N. G. N. Y., at its armory in Brooklyn, March 14th, speak in the highest terms of the drill, appearance and steadiness of that regiment, and of its spacious and handsome armory, and hospitality of its officers. The regiment appeared in full dress under Colonel David E. Austen, who drilled the three battalions of four batteries each as infantry in evolutions of the regiment. The spacious drill hall, 200 by 300 feet in area, afforded ample room for drill in line of masses and column of masses. After the drill the regiment was reviewed by Colonel Henry T. Dechert, accompanied by officers of the Second Pennsylvania. Lieutenant Colonel Davis, of the Eleventh Infantry, U. S. A., accompanied the reviewing party. Parade followed the review. The armory, designed by Colonel Austen, is probably the most complete in the United States.

The drill and ceremonies were exceptionally accurate.

A LETTER OF COMMENDATION.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR.

(Duplicate.)

WASHINGTON, March 12, 1901.

SAM'L A. BOYLE, JR.,
Lieut. and Commissary,
Third Regiment, Nat. Guard Penna., Philadelphia.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 8th instant, in which, by direction of Colonel Ralston, you request of me a statement as to the behavior of the Third Regiment, National Guard of Pennsylvania, while quartered in the Patent Office Building, the 3d and 4th instants, while attending the inaugural ceremonies.

In reply, it gives me pleasure to say that the conduct of the command while in the building was all that could reasonably be expected or desired. The men were under good control of the officers, were well behaved, and there was no defacement of the building or evidence of attempt to disturb any of the public property or records.

Yours respectfully,
EDWARD M. DAWSON,
Chief Clerk, Department of the Interior.

FIFTH REGIMENT NOTES

The dates fixed for the inspection of the companies of the Fifth Regiment are: Company A, Huntingdon, April 16th; Company E, Clearfield, April 17th; Company B, Bellefonte, April 18th; Company G, Lewistown, April 19th; Company D, Blairsville, April 23d; Company F, Indiana, April 24th; Company H, Johnstown, April 25th; Company C, Hollidaysburg, April 26th. The inspection at Hollidaysburg will take place at 7.30 P. M. During the afternoon the State property will be inspected.

First Lieut. S. Royer Dibert, of Company C, will shortly locate in West Virginia, where he will follow his profession, that of lawyer.

The regiment has received one of the regulation ambulances, fully equipped, according to the specifications required by the U. S. Government. The ambulance was made by the same firm that manufactures them for the army.

It is expected that the whole regiment will be in Altoona on the occasion of the home-coming of the Altoona soldier boys now in the Philippines, which will be about July. An entertainment and reception is being prepared for them and an invitation will likely be extended to the regiment to participate.

CORRESPONDENCE

Editor Our State Army and Navy Journal,

DEAR SIR:—I served as Captain in the Guard for twelve years and hold a retired officer's commission. Should I accept the appointment of a Battalion Adjutancy would I still be entitled to wear the uniform, on State occasions, of a retired Captain?

A SUBSCRIBER.

ANSWER:—We know of no rule bearing upon this question, but if you appear in the uniform of a retired officer on State occasions you do not officially represent the active command in which you have subsequently accepted a commission of lesser rank.

The regiment is proud of its record at Washington, which compares favorably with any of the regiments of the Guard. Particular pains were taken to ascertain if any member of the regiment had taken part in any of the alleged riotous conduct, and whether any of its members had been placed under arrest for any charge whatever. The result was that nothing could be found detrimental to the record of the command.

The different companies are drilling two and three nights each week in preparation for the inspection, and one of the company commanders has made the claim that he will place his command at the top of the Guard as the result of the inspection to take place next month.

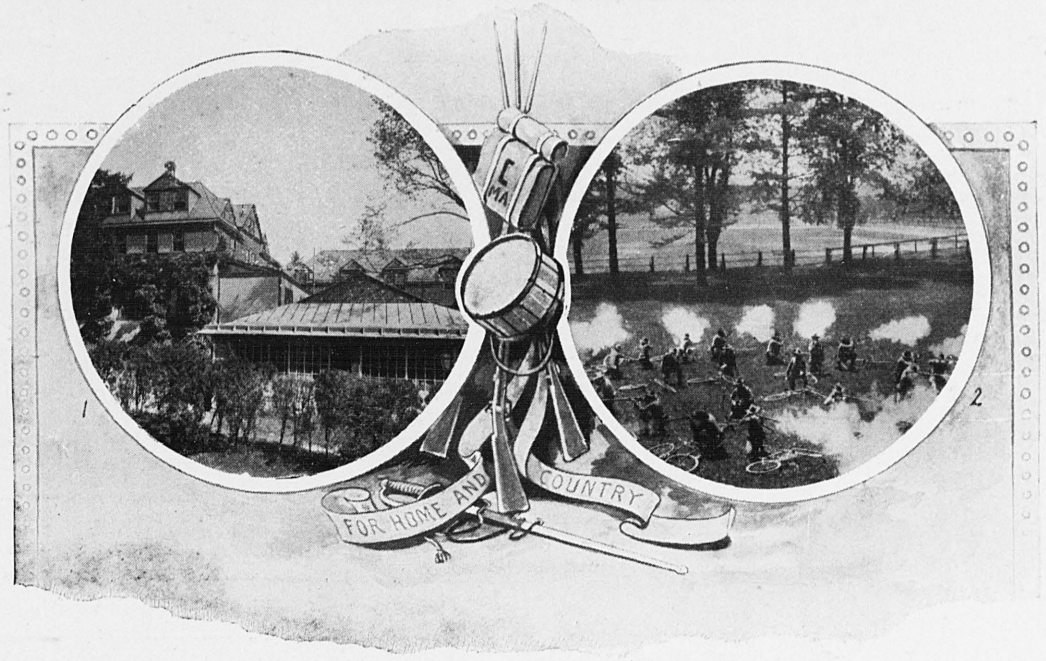
CHELTENHAM MILITARY ACADEMY OGONTZ, PA.

(NEAR PHILADELPHIA)

"AN IDEAL SCHOOL IN AN IDEAL LOCATION"



CHELTENHAM MILITARY ACADEMY, on the summit of the Chelten Hills, near Philadelphia, has a location and environment rarely equaled for beauty and healthfulness. The School was founded twenty-eight years ago by the late Rev. Samuel Clements, D. D., and from its opening has had the best class of patronage and has met with unusual success in the training and education of young men and boys. A majority of its graduates enter leading colleges or scientific schools, and for the past six years its annual representation in such institutions has been equal to one-half the attendance of the school.

Among the features that have contributed to the success and popularity of the Academy, the following will at once commend themselves to judicious parents: 1. The attendance is limited to seventy boarding pupils, in order that the classes may not be so large as to render attention to the individual pupil inconvenient or impossible. 2. Ten resident instructors (an average of one for every seven cadets), selected for their ability and experience and for their willingness to take an interest in the welfare and happiness of the pupils. 3. An honest endeavor to train and educate the whole boy rather than to merely prepare him to pass college entrance examinations. 4. The moral tone and influence of the institution.

Parents seeking the right school for a boy are cordially invited to visit the Academy, or to communicate with the Principal. Rooms are assigned in order of application.
